Hernando County, Fla. Gets First E85 Station
Jallo Oil expands West Florida's E85 stations with partner Protec Fuel

SPRING HILL, Fla. – – Jallo Oil, through its Spring Hill Mobil station, is allowing southwestern Florida flex-fuel vehicle drivers to fill up with E85 fuel for the first time in Hernando County. The Spring Hill, Fla., station, which launched its E85 sales this week, is at the corner of Spring Hill and Barclay.

Protec Fuel, based in Boca Raton, Fla., has partnered with Jallo Oil to manage the E85 installation and provide fuel for the company's new greener burning fuel offering. Protec is a turnkey E85 company specializing in station conversions and fuel distribution. Flex-fuel vehicles can run on E85 and gasoline. E85 is a blend of 85 percent ethanol and 15 percent gasoline for flex-fuel vehicles (FFVs).

"We feel this is a win-win for the area and hopefully for our business," said Paul Jallo, President, Jallo Oil Distributors. "We see excitement building for FFV drivers because they know they can use E85; they just didn't know where to get it in our area before."

"Paul Jallo's excitement in offering the E85 choice for Spring Hill residents is refreshing," said Todd Garner, CEO of Protec Fuel. "He knows he is doing right by the environment and the U.S. economy by offering a cleaner-burning option for customers, but he believes it makes sense from a business standpoint as well. He's differentiating his convenience store," he said.

Besides Jallo's pledge to always sell his E85 for less than conventional gasoline at the Spring Hill Mobil, it is better for the environment and supports our U.S. and local economies. Additionally, Jallo Oil offers even greater savings on gallons of their fuel - $.15 off per gallon - if you purchase a car wash when you fill up your tank. Jallo Oil has been operating in the county for seven years and is a diversified company that operates Warehouse Wine & Liquor area stores, as well as shopping centers, and calls its Mobil convenience store a “one-stop shop.”
